

To:.....

I have previously written a letter to you, asking you to seek care for a possible chlamydia infection. I have still not received any information that you have been tested. If you haven't been tested, I ask you to contact an advice centre for young people, STI clinic or care centre. NB! Bring this letter. The examination and treatment is free of charge. If I do not hear from you within two weeks I will have to hand the case over to the communicable diseases control physician.

If you have already been tested, I would like you to call me on phone no..... or fill out the form and send it back to me. Don't forget to give your personal identification number and information regarding where and roughly when you went to be tested, so that I can phone there and confirm that you have been tested.

You should not have sexual intercourse until you have been examined and received the results. If you have sexual intercourse or other intimate contact before you have received the test results anyway, you must use a condom/femidom/dental dam throughout intercourse/the intimate contact.

Don't forget to bring this letter to your appointment.

The testing must be done within two weeks.

Under the communicable diseases act, you are required to allow yourself to be examined.
